Commerce of the port.--A summary of the water-borne commerce of Mobile in the calendar years 1913 and 1914 is shown in the following statement:0 In the calendar year 1913, which was the more nearly normal trade year, and is, therefore preferable for purposes of discussion, the value of the foreign trade passing through this port was $40,964,453, or about four-fifths of the total value of the water-borne commerce of the port. The value of the exports was $37,463,585. Cotton is the principal commodity handled over the wharves at Mobile and constituted nearly 40 per cent of the commerce of the port in 1913. Mobile is the fourth cotton-shipping port of the United States. Lumber and timber products were also...
